CRITICAL NOTES

[ These Critical Notes cover observations and explanations on the Constituted Text. Exegetical notes figure but occasionally as the constituted Text of the Rāmāyaṇa is quite smooth and easy, and the object of such notes is to help the reader. They are generally put at places where he may regard the Text rather out of the way in adopting a particular reading. Additions to and corrections in the Text and Critical Apparatus are put in square brackets. SR and NR represent the two major recensions generally but sometimes include allied versions.]

1

1-14—The question of the transpositions of some of these stanzas in SR has been fully discussed in the Introduction ( p. xx ). There are two explanations possible for this transposition : one is that both-Bāla and Ayodhyā at one time formed one Kāṇḍa as is evidenced by some MSS. like D<sub>1</sub> that we have actually used ; and the other is that a folio of a small MS. might have been inadvertently misplaced in very early times. That is why some stanzas were transposed, viz., sts. 1-4 or 5 and sts. 11-14 in Dg; Th G and M<sub>1-4</sub>.

9<sup>ab</sup>) Note that there is an attempt in De and some MSS. of S V B group to make Rāma an arśāvātāra of Viṣṇu.

10, m* lines 1-2. It is here that the poem foretells the purpose of the Rāmāvatāra. Note also that these two lines have no support from NR.

29, 20* Note how the different lines of this passage are distributed in different MSS. The contents relate to the qualities of Rāma, which are all covered by our text. Compare in this context the contents of 14*, 15* and 19*.

34, 27* Note the complex character of this passage which must have been first introduced in SR and then penetrated into NW. The three lines of 27* which are found in some MSS. of NR merely expand the idea on account of its contact with SR.

35, 29* and 29(A)*. These two passages are peculiar to NW version and have no support of SR.

36, 31*. Note that this passage also is found exclusively in NW version without any support from SR.

4 पूर्वैः कर्माननुगच्छत, i.e., पूर्वैः कर्माननुगच्छता. The use of the Instrumental case is peculiar here, and might be due to the influence of the same expression in st. 3 above. The variant पूर्वै which is not well-supported, is an attempt to improve the phrase grammatically.

12, 35* अन्वा मध्ववर्णिता तु विमर्शवर्णिता, is a pure S insertion. What Daśaratha wants to say is that his own view on the coronation of Rāma may be due to his own partiality for his son, while members of the assembly may think dispassionately in the matter, and, after deliberations, may even suggest a still better course. Note Cg and Ct on the passage : विमर्शेन पूर्वपरमपुत्रवर्णिने हेतुना अन्वविमर्शेना अवि-कार्यमायुर्मा.

It appears to me that the argument in the phrase is so loaded that it surely is of late origin influenced by Māgha's Śiṣupālavadha, canto 2, and as such abnormal in the Adikāvya.

1, ( App. 1, No. 5 ). This additional passage is peculiar and found in D<sub>1</sub> and D<sub>2</sub> only, and is an expansion of ideas already detailed. The passage has no support from the rest of the MSS. Of these two MSS., D<sub>2</sub> has only 26 lines common with D<sub>1</sub>.

11-13, 71*, 72* and 73*. Note that these passages are found only in D<sub>1</sub>-L<sub>1</sub> and have no support of the rest of the MSS.

27 परोक्षं दूरेतानो दूरां प्रपद्यत इव—Note Ct : परोक्षं वायुमत्तः परोक्षतुमन्विष्येण इत्थं स्वपराङ्मुखान्निवारणे । अत्रपुत्रा सरा समानं विषया मज्जन्त्याधारेविचारेण ; Cg : अमलदया इत्थं तत्क-मस्तुतिमर्णितकानां परोक्षं भूया मन्विष्टानुलेन धत्तवर्णिने एविवरे, सा परोक्षवृत्तिः । अन्ववर्णिने अमलादीन् क्वा दूराणुगच्छति, सा प्रपद्य-वृत्तिः ।

19-20 The reason for immediate coronation of Rāma as indicated here is that stars do not seem to be favourable to Daśaratha, and even suggest calamities like death or change of mind. The good and auspicious idea in the mind of Daśaratha, therefore, requires to be put into action immediately.

25-27 These stanzas indicate that Daśaratha desired Rāma's coronation even in the absence of Bharata, even though, as he knew, Bharata was well-disposed to Rāma.

5

3. 94*—This passage is found in all our MSS. except D1-4 (N1 T1 missing), and being a repetition, is excluded from the Constituted Text.

6

15, 16S* अथा, or गथाः are compositions or recitation of songs.

18 दीपकान्, lamps hanging on trees.

22 कृद्वेदधरावरः—Cg : इति वेदके वराहो जहृष्टावृष्टवभुनी वेदः Ct : अथावतलज्जन्मप्राज्ञायादन्तरः, one who knows the ins and outs of people.

7

4 कर्षणा.—Ct : कर्षणावरः. Cg construes the phrase differently as an adjective, not of Mantharā, but of Kausalyā : कर्षणा स्त्री कर्षणा सत्त्वति । ... बद्ध । कर्षणायाः-विश्वेर्धने प्रवर्त्तति किम् । नाम्नायनवासप्रजाप्राप्तमालिखुकिः. It appears that Mantharā regarded Kausalyā, compared with her mistress Kaikeyī, to be miserly or greedy and not bent on spending. She would not mention the name Kausalyā as she hated her, being Kaikeyī's co-wife.

6 कृष्ण is the name of a class of maid-servants, and does not necessarily relate to the personal deformity so much of Mantharā, though she had a lump of flesh on her chest. Compare 2.9. 48 and 30 and the description of her person there.

19 अथर्व राजवशोऽयम्. Ct : सत्यो हि सः । राजवशे स्वां स्वयम् व साधुविष्णोर्धनं सदा.

23 सङ्घः प्रतिप्रार्थन, an enemy in reality, and husband in name. Cg : प्रतिप्रार्थनं प्रतिप्रार्थनेति.

5 रामस्य परमाः शिष्यः. Much has been made in some quarters of the plural शिष्यः, which is interpreted by them that Rāma had more than one wife. The correct interpretation of the passage is that it refers to ladies in general, and not necessarily wives, that were dear to Rāma such as Kausalyā, Sumitrā and even Kaikeyī.

26 दशमिषाकृता पूर्व...राममाता । It appears that Kaikeyī in her youth insulted Kausalyā who, as soon as Rāma becomes king, would take revenge on Kaikeyī. Compare in this context 2.17.22-25, and particularly न हृष्टुर्वै कल्याणं हृष्टे वा प्रतिपद्यते and स्वयि न निहितेऽप्येवमहमासे निराकृता.

9

4 रामार्थमुपाहितनी. Cg : रामार्थे रामानिर्भेदकम् प्रयोजनम्. Compare st. 8 below.

9 देवतासम्ब साक्षकः. The word साक्ष means साक्ष्य. The word is grammatically incorrect, but may be explained as सहभावः, association.

10 दक्षिणा दण्डप्रान्तरि. The acquaintance that Kaikeyī had of the southern region of the Dandaka forest on this occasion seems to have suggested to her that Rāma should be exiled there. The period of exile, viz., 14 years, instead of 12 years as in the MBh, may be a matter of accident. At any rate, I have no explanation to offer why Kaikeyī should mention this figure. Perhaps she thought that after all Rāma might not return to Ayodhyā or survive this period.

29 साह सज्जनपुत्र्येयम्. Ct notes here an additional passage not recorded by any of our MSS., and it runs as follows :

न हि हृष्टुर्वै वापं आप्तेऽपि लोभितः ।
केनयेषु हि सा बाल्ये बाधाय हृष्टुर्विषम् ।
अप्युदितवती बाधा येन शोभे यदात्मना ।
वमादस्यते तिवे स्ते स्वयमददतिता ।
वमादस्यते स्वयि नोके वाप्यसि कुलितम् ।
इति आप्तमाच्छिद्य मन्त्रावशमगता ।

All this is clearly an after-thought which Nāgeśa perhaps found in later recensions of the Rāma story.

10

10 The first half of this stanza has been taken from NR. The contents are supported by 197* and 204*.

21 The reading कर्मेण is supported by SR and means गर्भेन.

27-28 These two stanzas state the objective of Kaikeyi in clear terms, and st. 29 its immediate fulfilment.

11

1 वयसिदिव पुष्यान्ते देवलोकात्परिभुतम्. The reference seems to be to the latter life of Yayāti as recorded in the MBh. 1. 81-88 and more particularly to 1.81.3:

समस्तः सुखदासं तं निवसन्मुदितः सुखम् ।
काकल मासिभृतः पुनः शुक्रेण-वाहितः ।

12

4 This refers to the well-known story, recorded in Hindu and Buddhist works, of Sibi Aśvinara, who, after promising protection to a pigeon, had to offer his flesh to a hawk. The next stanza refers to a similar story of Alarka who offered his eyes to a learned Brahmin. The reason of quoting these stories is to remind Daśaratha that he must also honour his word.

13

10 वीरवाक्ता, Cg: राजवाक्ता.

24 अत्माधिकाराः, relating to his own self. compare आत्मसंभूतः in 2.15.9.

15

6 अचलचूर्णेन. A sage never tells a lie, but if he does, he becomes perturbed as king Daśaratha was.

16

19 रामो वितर्किसाधने, Rāma does not vary his word or promise; in other words, Rāma is एकवचन or स्तम्भम्.

33 Here Rāma declares his firm resolve to sacrifice everything dear to him for Bharata to please his father or mother. Compare:

येहं दत्तं च मौक्त्यं च वदं वा कालकीमणि ।
मायवन्तस्य मौक्त्यं मुञ्चते नास्ति मे ज्वरा ।

URC 1.12

In this book we meet similar expressions several times.

17

26 दश स्रग् च वयसि तत्र कालस्य राम. The passage states that Rāma was just 17 years of age when he was to be crowned or exiled.

18

11 454* lines 3 and 4. This is a citation occurring in the MBh. and even in some Smṛtis. The expression अवलितम् does not suit the context here though कर्माकार्यमनतः does.

23 अथ प्रायश्चित्तसिद्धये. Kausalyā threatens to go on a sort of hunger-strike in case Rāma leaves for forest. The practice of pṛāyopaveśana or hunger-strike to achieve one's objectives seems to be common from very early times. We have in this very book another instance of such a hunger-strike in 2.103.13-15 where Bharata administers to Rāma a similar threat to persuade him to return to Ayodhyā to rule. Rāma points out to Bharata there that only the Brahmin class was permitted to resort to this practice and not the warrior-class: न तु क्षत्रीयसिद्धानां विधिः प्रायश्चित्तने in 2.103.17.

26 नास्ति ह्यस्मिन् विदुषांश्च समतिक्रम्यतु मम. Rāma says here that he cannot disobey his father's command even though it might be improper. In support, he quotes the cases of a sage Kapṇu, Sagara's sons and also of Jāmadagnya Rāma.

19

3. 484*, lines 3 and 4. The entire * passage is inserted as an explanation of st. 3 which states that Rāma desires to dispense with the paraphernalia of coronation, as otherwise Kaikeyi may not take his word seriously. This * passage is found only in SR, and, according to Uḍḍari, this text should be changed like this: The lines 1-4 of 484* should be followed by st. 3. The MSS. of SR that have come down to us do not support Uḍḍari's view: विषयोऽस्तु देवप्रसादाद्भूतः.

22

Pages 143 and 144 give a conspectus of sequence of the stanzas as found in NR. This indicates that the text-tradition in NR differs widely from that in SR which maintains the order uniformly. This is a clear proof that the versions of NR have not preserved the genuine order of the text-tradition here. Note also that Dr here supports SR.

11 गुधरः is a chariot drawn by eight horses and bedecked with gold and gems. This type of chariot is used in processions as an embellishment. Cg: गुधरः अष्टश्वं कर्तव्यं रथः. It reads गुधरः and explains the term: वीरानमस्यवेद्यतो रथः, न तु गुधारे रथः । तादृशो निर्विकारो रथोऽपि वच्छति । तस्मिन् सज्जनिष्ठायापरोहते, नो वेदप्रको वच्छति.

वीरा धारणकृताद्वादिपतोऽप्य नृपधमैः ।
न तु कन्यायना वोढ्या दुःखेन पुरवाग्निः ॥

42

8-16 Note that SR maintains a uniform order of stanzas, which differs considerably in NW, NE and W versions. Ma has its sequence disturbed, but it relates to only three stanzas.

44

8 The course of Rāma's journey, after the crossing of the river Tamasā was, first northwards, and after crossing the river Vedaśruti towards the south. The river Gomati was crossed next and then the Śyandikā. It is at Śrāgavera that he first saw the swift current of the waters of the Gaṅgā.

9 स्मरति: = निशादापिपतिः.

19 न हि वरं प्रणिमोहे. I cannot accept gifts or presents, and I live on fruits and roots.

66 शुभ्रस्रवणेगमिरता. Sphya is found in ritualistic literature as the name of an implement to scrape the sacrificial ground. As the shape of an oar is similar to that implement, the oar is also called sphya.

70 Our text states that Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa killed four animals, while some MSS. of NR say that they killed only one spotted deer.

48

25 दशकोट इतस्तत्र मिरः. The mount Citrakūṭa is here stated to be about 10 kroṣas or 20 miles to the south-east of Prayāga.

49

11 जम्बुवती, i.e. यमुना. Probably because the river in our mythology was the daughter of जम्बुवत्, the sun. The form जम्बुवती is somewhat ungrammatical; जम्बुवती is still more so.

50

12, 1200*. This passage is found only in SR. The reference to Vālmiki therein is certainly absurd, and the passage 1200(A)* is still more so.

13, 1201* and 1202*. These passages indicate that two separate huts were constructed, one for Rāma and Sītā, and the other for Lakṣmaṇa. SR seems to suggest that they constructed only one hut (परीशालम्).

15 शालं कृत्वामहे, let us perform a sacrifice for warming the house.

22 गान्धर्वती is otherwise called गन्धर्विनी.

56

2 This refers to the episode detailed in the next Sarga.

57

8 कृष्णहृद्येन कुमारिण etc. When I was young and already earned reputation that I hit an object merely on hearing its sound.

11 परेताचरिता दिक्षु, i.e., south.

19 उदाहारे i.e., to fetch water.

25 सर्वे, all the three; तसि, himself and his blind parents.

33 अशक्तिपरिक्रमः, weak and unable to walk.

35 एकपदी. Cg: एकपदगाममाश्रुत्वा मरणि, a track so narrow that one can cover it with one step only.

37 न हिमिरिर्ह etc. The young ascetic hit by the arrow of Daśaratha states that he is not a Brahmin. He was the son of the mother belonging to the śūdra caste and of the father belonging to the merchant caste. The old couple, blind on account of age, retired to a forest, built a sort of hermitage, and, with the help of their son, led a quiet life of ascetics.

58

15 विदुष्टेऽन्मसि सारवः. I discharged my arrow in the direction of water. Note the unusual use of locative case to indicate direction.

21 अग्निं हृष्य जुहो न स्वादाभ्यासा कुतो मत्तान्. As stated in st. 20 above, that if a Kṣatriya consciously attempts to kill an ascetic, the act would remove Indra from his heavenly kingdom. This act of Daśaratha would have ruined the entire race of Raghua, not to speak of a single member like Daśaratha.

60

13 संकल्प or संकाकने means प्रेतनिर्हरिः according to Ct or संस्कारः according to Cg. Elsewhere the term संकल्प figures associated with अस्ति when it means collection of bones of the dead. This meaning, of course, is not applicable in the present context.

61

1 राजकादिः, Officers of the King, courtiers.

7 अनाकं हि नो राज्यम्. The condition of a kingless state is described here in stas. 8-23. Similar description of a kingless state is found also in the MBh. 12-67.

18 वयसावसुतो युनिः. A wandering ascetic does not build a hermitage and halts for the night anywhere at nightfall. In a kingless state, this sort of practice is unsafe and impossible.

21 मत्वा इव नरा निम्ने भयवन्ति परस्परम्. The MBh. expression in 12. 67. 10 is शूरे मत्वा निम्नापश्यन् which is identical with Mamu. 7.20. This is usually known as मत्तकथा, where the weak are overpowered by the strong. Cf. Kauṣilya Artha. 1.4 and 1.13.

62

7 आश्विनम्, urgent. Cg: अश्विनः आश्विनः, तं प्राश्विनम्. तिनदादिनाम्. ... अश्विनः कुन्तम्. तन्मन्त्राश्विनम्.

13 अमिकाते ततः प्रायः वैजयिन्मन्त्राश्विनम्. Here SR does not give a uniform text. We have a reading from Ct which explains: अमिकाते वैजयिन्मन्त्रो यामोः Cg, however, adopts a different reading for * and explains: अमिकाते तदाश्विनम्. कुन्तिकाते तदाश्विनम्. वैजयिन्मन्त्राश्विनम्. तदाश्विनम्. नदीनृतेके.

63

2 नृपतेषु दुर्गो राशिः. Bharata saw a dream when the night was about to be turned into dawn. There is a general belief that dreams seen at dawn come out to be true.

14 प्रयागे दक्षिणामुखः. King Daśaratha was seen in the dream to proceed south-wards, indicating his death.

64

9 आश्विनम् सदा चण्डी. This is Bharata's view about his mother, which is quite pertinent in the present context.

20 ऐन्द्रधनुः, belonging to the region ऐन्द्रधनुः, a mount which was a famous source of good elephants. It appears that the Kekaya country was rich in elephants, horses, camels, mules and dogs of excellent breed, as these animals are included in the gifts to Bharata.

65

1 Bharata's return journey has been fully detailed in the Introduction, p. XXVI. It seems now somewhat difficult to identify the places mentioned. The commentators, particularly those from the South, are unable to present a uniform text, and explain names differently, particularly the expression शिवमन्त्राश्विनम्, which is explained by a majority of them as शिवमन्त्राश्विनम्, शिवमन्त्राश्विनम्, while Ct says शिवमन्त्राश्विनम् नृपतेः, which, from the context, seems to be a more reasonable explanation.

10 शिवमन्त्राश्विनम्, horses from hills. They are both swift and sturdy, and swim the streams comfortably.

14 सप्तशेपितः दधि. The journey of Bharata from Rājagṛha to Ayodhyā required seven nightly halts.

66

2 उष्यात, jumped from her golden seat to welcome her son. She, however, does not reveal to Bharata the news of Daśaratha's death but talks on other matters.

14 भवान् नो भवान्. To Bharata who was ignorant of his father's death which Kaikeyī knew so well.

67

Note the sequence of stanzas in NR which does not appear to me to be natural.

7 मातुलो ममाग्निः. You are my enemy in the form of a mother.

13 वीरस्य वासन्तम् = वीरस्य वासन्तम्, a case of double sandhi after elision of visarga. All southern commentators explain this feature in a similar way. There are hundreds of such instances in the language of the Epics. Gs, among our MSS., changes the above reading to वीरस्य वासन्तम् to bring it in line with Pāṇini's rules.

14 Compare: अश्विनम् ममाग्निः इन्द्रधनुः ममाग्निः.

15-24 Śatapatha Br. 14.9.4-8. A short episode on a mother's love to a son.

29 इन्द्रधनुः ऐन्द्रधनुः. The Indradhvaja is honoured during the festival, but when it is over, it is thrown on the ground and even insulted by boys.

69

1, 177:*, 1772*. These two passages, found in the MSS. of NR and SR, do not agree in contents and hence are relegated to the Crit. App.

14 कृता राजानुया बुद्धिः etc. Cg: कौसल्यया स्तम्भितोऽपि रोषं परित्यज्य संयमवान्भवन्वाह—कौशल्यादिना । आशेः समः । यस्मात्तुल्ये समतो सर्वा मता, तस्य राजानुया कृता बुद्धिः शुक्ला विधित्वेषवोचक-

5 शोधनार्थमुपगतः. Bharata who had gone to the burning ground to pick up the bones of Daśaratha (and thereby to clear the burning ground). Cg: शोधनार्थं स्वशोधनार्थम् । अविवक्षितव्यार्थमित्यर्थः ।

15 वनारकसि. Cg: वन्यामरणादिषु किं तर्हि (तद्) गृहान् प्रकीर्णं स्व्यं ग्राह्यसि तत्प्रवृत्तम्.

22 चीणि इहानि. Cg: अशनायापिपासे शोकमोहौ जटमूलं इति चीणि इहानि.

72

5-23. The episode of Mantharā chastised by Śatrughna is narrated here. Bharata's view is that he should have punished not only Mantharā, but Kaikeyī also. If he would do so, Rāma would not even speak to him. Hence he advises Śatrughna to let her off.

73

3 संगता नाराज्ञोति. Even though there is no king, it is our good luck (संगतिः = देवयोगः) that there is no disorder in the country. Cg: नाराज्ञोति राज्यसम्भ-
वात्सन्धेर्न स भ्रष्टति.

12 नाकुम्भिनोम्. Cg: केवलमादृत्यपरिहृतम्, केशमात्रमाव-

74

5 स्वार्थं समासाय, in their turn.

75

1 नान्दीमुखी रात्रिम्, the night which marked Bharata's effort to start on a journey to bring Rāma back to Ayodhyā. Cg: रामान्वनान्धुरचन्द्रकाम् ।
वहा । शोकविमोहात् कृतान्धुरवाम्.

6 नौरिवाकौक्ष, a boat without a pilot or कर्षक.

76

1 प्रमहान्, well-controlled. Cg: नियमनीयम् । वहा ।

77

6 रामान्वनान्धुरः. Note that among Rāma's mothers who join the party there is also Kaikeyī, as she has now realised her mistake.

12-15 We get here a list of trades and professions known to the age of Vālmiki. A Buddhist counterpart will be found in Digha Nikāya 2. The list in NR is enlarged still further in 1905*.

20 भूमिप्राप्तेन सर्वशः. Bharata, on his arrival on the bank of the Gaṅgā, asks his ministers to camp there, according to the wish of each group. Compare : हन्तेन स्वेन स्वेन पुण्यपुण्यम्.

78

3 कोविदारवजः. The flag or banner of Bharata had an emblem of Kovidāra tree. The commentators do not seem to be kindly to Bharata, and they seem to put into the mouth of Guha that this tree is an emblem of wickedness. In fact, Guha thought that Bharata had come there to punish the fishermen or that he was pursuing Rāma to kill him. So he asked his men to be ready to fight with Bharata and his army, if necessary.

15 निष्कृष्टैव देशोऽयम्, this region under my command is like a garden around your own home. Guha asks Bharata to stay there and be at home comfortably at night, and then to cross the river next morning.

79

7 कश्चिदुष्टे कर्तसि एतदाहिकर्तव्यम्. Guha hopes that Bharata is not marching against Rāma with evil intentions as the army accompanying him appears to indicate.

9 ना वृत्तं वाक्ये etc. Bharata assures Guha of his good intentions, saying that his elder brother is like his father.

81

17 जीपवासे = जपवासे. Rāma observed a sort of fast that day and lived on water that night.

84

7 न रामान्वनान्धुरः. Note here that the object of Bharadvāja, not purposely mentioning Daśaratha's death, is to ascertain Bharata's intention in moving with his army in the direction of Rāma.

85

11-18 Bharadvāja invoked the aid of Viśvakarman for according hospitality to Bharata. The objects provided include food and drink, wines and amusements, and entertainments of all kind.

35-36 Bharata was provided with a royal seat, but he did not use it; on the contrary, he offered his homage to the seat as if Rāma was occupying it, and himself occupied the seat meant for a minister or an associate. Note the Dative case राजस्य which is to be construed with अग्निप्रणय.

62 निष्ठान्नसंयोजः, with plentiful and excellent condiments (निष्ठान्न).

86

10 अयं दूरीरेणु येन दूरेणु विस्मृतः. This gives exactly the same distance mentioned before, viz., ten Krośas or about 20 miles from Prayāga. To the north of the mount flowed the river Mandākinī. The direction of the mount is mentioned as south (दक्षिणेन) and south-east (सुवर्ध्वेन).

28 Bharadvāja advises Bharata not to accuse Kaikeyī as her behaviour in putting Rāma into exile would end well, probably suggesting the death of Rāvāna.

33 वामदेवेऽङ्गः = वामदेवेः.

88

This Sarga describes the beauties of Citrakūṭa. Rāma points them out to Sītā and concludes that he would spend happily the entire period of exile in her and Lakṣmaṇa's company, observing duties of a pious life as led by good men.

89

15 Rāma asks Sītā to regard the wild animals as citizens, the mount Citrakūṭa as the city of Ayodhyā, and the river Mandākinī as the Sarayū, so that she should not feel that she is staying in the forest.

19 App. I (No. 26).—After this stanza, the MSS. of NR including M<sub>1</sub> insert a long passage of 122 lines, impropriety of which has been fully discussed in the Introduction. It has been pointed out there that the passage consists of two parts, part one of 66 lines and part two of the remaining lines. Both these parts seem to be very old, the first going back to the age of Bhavabhūti (8th century A.D.) and the second to the age of Kālidāsa (5th century). Bhavabhūti actually quotes a stanza or two from part one of this passage, and Kālidāsa in his poem Raghuvamśa (12.21-23) refers to the Kāka episode. Though there is no trace of the Kāka episode in Ayodhyā in T G M<sub>1</sub>-2, which I consider to be the purest SR, the story is referred to in the Vulgate, 5.67, in the Lahore edition in 5.66 and in Gorresio's edition in 5.63, and is used as an abhijñāna by Sītā in her message to Rāma. Thus, all the printed editions agree in retaining the incident in the Sundarākāṇḍa. What would be the position of this episode in our critical text is yet to be seen. I, however, do not see any reason to change my views as expressed in the Introduction. The reason why I eschewed it from the Ayodhyākāṇḍa is that it is not found in SR in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa. If our MSS. have this incident in the Sundarākāṇḍa, my explanation is that NR referred to it in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa in anticipation. The exclusion of this passage is justified from the point of view of textual criticism.

90

14, 16 The Kovidāradhivāja was a special and exclusive banner of Bharata, having the emblem of an exuberant (विह्वल) Kovidāra tree. If Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa fight with Bharata's army and capture the banner, it would be regarded as the defeat of Bharata.

18 अविर्भूतः. Lakṣmaṇa calls Bharata to be an enemy and regards him as worthy of being killed.

21 कलुषेणैव महता मेदिनी पदेमुत्थानम्, Let the earth be cleared of a great evil, viz., Kaikeyī and her son Bharata.

91

5 अहं क्षमिष्युः स्वं सत्सन्निधौ कृते. Rāma is trying to pacify Lakṣmaṇa, pointing out to him to mention a single occasion on which Bharata ever displeased him, and concluding he says that if Lakṣmaṇa speaks a single unpleasant word to Bharata, Rāma would regard it as an offence against himself. After this argument, Lakṣmaṇa was put to shame and looked small (प्रविशेद्येव स्थानि गच्छामि लज्जया).

16 Read after गजकुल in the Critical Apparatus:—After 16, S<sub>1</sub> S<sub>2</sub> B D<sub>1</sub> M<sub>1</sub> read 2.92.1.

9 अभिज्ञानकृतः कम्पा निशोके कन्तुमिच्छता. Lakṣmīnaga seems to have placed marks by fastening some pieces of cloth or bark on tree-tops by way of indication of the path leading to their trunks, by night.

36 पादप्रवणम्. On seeing Rāma, Bharata was so overpowered with grief that he ran to touch the feet of Rāma, but the force of his grief was so great that he actually fell down before reaching Rāma's feet.

94

3 दुष्करीकम्. Cg: वैकर्म्यदिना दुष्करीकपत्रम्; Ct: दुष्करीक-

कारम्, कर्मणि दीपकत्वम् ।

2134*. SR first puts into the mouth of Rāma a question suspecting Dāśaratha's death, and, without waiting for Bharata's reply to that question, goes on firing question after question how he is ruling his newly acquired state; whether he observes rules laid down for the guidance of a good king. To me, the entire set of stanzas beginning with कश्चिद् except the first, is out of place, and introduced to show that Vālmiki knew well the science of polity. Compare, in this context, Mbh. 2.57-99, where the questions put to newly enthroned Yudhiṣṭhira by Nārada who visited him have a sense of propriety in the context. These questions there cover some 93 stanzas in the constituted text and about 100 or more in the Vulgate. Our Critical Text contains just 56 stanzas against 73 in the Vulgate and a few less in Corresio. Professor Edgerton has given a note in his Addenda et corrigenda, to Saṃhāparvan pp. 489-491. He says there that about 37 stanzas of Rāmāyana have their parallels in the Mbh. 2.5. I think there is clearly an imitation here of the Mbh., where the questions are justified on more than one ground, while there is a good deal of absurdity in them in the Rāmāyana on emotional ground. The question put in stanza 3 is just the question to be put to Bharata, and had Rāma waited for a few moments before he put the other questions, the situation would have become clear to Rāma that Bharata had not accepted the Kingship. But without waiting for a reply to the first question, Rāma fires on his questions making Bharata a silent and bewildered listener. We may have been justified in ignoring them altogether, but our MSS. authorities are uniform in keeping at least 56 of the stanzas.

This sarga and the following 96th sarga are read in a number of MSS. after sarga 97 of the Critical Text. That order of the text is not correct and does not correctly represent the chronology of events as has been pointed out by Govindarāja. Mahesvaratirtha seems to be the champion of that order of sargas and Govindarāja has criticised his views. A part of Cg is given in the Critical Apparatus. I am citing here the remaining part:

2 हाचकोऽयं सदा धर्मः निजोऽजमायु नार्यम्. Bharata points out to Rāma that it is an eternal law with the race of Ikṣvāku that so long as the eldest son is living, he should succeed his father and no younger son should be made a king. Compare in this context, what Vaiṣiṣṭha says in 2.102.30.

स्वराज्यं हि सर्वेषां राजा भवति पूर्वजः ।

पूर्वजे नाशः पुत्रे ज्येष्ठे राजेऽभिषिच्यते ॥

26 ल = हे काल. Some MSS. and even printed editions put figure 3 after ल to indicate that the second vowel of the word is a pluta. The word ल is misunderstood and hence a wide variety of readings has come in.

31 वरुणः पुरुषो मयि लज्जालम्ब देवतः, gives Rāma's explanation why he offers नीवमन्त्रिणः as a gift to his father.

97

21 यदं कृत्वा वारुणे विभक्तं लोकांनिधौ, Rāma points out to Bharata, "our father divided patrimony in the manner that you should rule in Ayodhyā and I should live in the forest." This division of patrimony, once made, cannot be undone, following the well-known legal maxim: लङ्घनीं निवर्तते (Manu 9.47).

98

4 लक्ष्मिं लवेवाम्, Bharata says to Rāma that the kingdom was no doubt given to him by their father; but now he gives it to Rāma which he should accept.

99

3-4 Rāma points out to Bharata that Daśaratha made a promise to Kaikeyī's father at the time of marriage that kingdom to her son would be the dowry. Daśaratha also gave to Kaikeyī two boons, Kingdom to Bharata and exile to Rāma. He further says to Bharata that they both should honour the pledges of their parents.

100

1 परोक्षम्, far away from the accepted law. Jābāli here takes the stand of an atheist or Laukīyatika and argues that Rāma should go to Ayodhyā and rule there. Jābāli is made here the champion of the Lokāyata school, and advocates the philosophy of that school, the object being to persuade Rāma to go back to Ayodhyā.

16 2241*. Note that the contents of this * passage have no uniform location in the MSS. Note particularly lines 13-16 which make an unjustifiable reference to Buddha calling him a thief. The absurdity of this passage is quite plain on the surface, but, it must be admitted, it is at least as old as Uḍḍari (earlier than 1250 A.D.). The composer of this stanza confounds Buddha and Cārvāka. In the first place, Buddha is not a Laukīyatika or Nāstika, and there are no points of agreement between their views. It must, at the same time, be noted that the tenets of the Lokāyata school are as old as humanity itself; but Buddhism has a history and came into existence in the 6th century B.C. To make any reference to Buddha and his philosophy is an anachronism because Jābāli, Rāma's senior, uses his name; further, Vālmiki also is chronologically older than Buddha. To call Buddha a thief indicates only a hatred on the part of the composer in a composition characterised by literary chastity. The spurious character of this passage requires no further comments. It is clearly smuggled into Vālmiki's text by one who disliked and misunderstood Buddha's teachings. The NE version has no trace of this passage.

102

The genealogy of Ikṣvāku Kings which appears here may be compared with one which appears in the Bālakāṇḍa, 1.69.17-30 and also with that in 1.1274*. If we examine the Rāmāyana-genealogy of the solar race, we find some discrepancies. The chronology as given in the Constituted Text of the Bālakāṇḍa and that given in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa do not show complete agreement. Here I may point out particularly the name of Yayāti which figures in Bāla but not in Ayodhyā. In fact, this name of Yayāti among kings of the solar race looks strange as has been pointed out by Dr. A. D. Pusalkar in his article "Genealogy of the Solar Dynasty in the Purāṇas and the Rāmāyana: A study," appearing in Purāṇa, IV, pp. 23-33.

103

15 Bharata wanted to go on hunger-strike or Prāyopaveśana, and asked Sumantra to spread the darbha grass on the ground, and as Sumantra was hesitating, himself started to spread it on the ground. Rāma then tells him that as a Kṣatriya he cannot go on hunger-strike. Bharata then appeals to the public to prevail upon Rāma to go back to Ayodhyā, but they declined to do so, as in their opinion Rāma's stand to obey his father was right.

29 नयिरे मया कर्तव्यं कृत्वाणे बुभुक्षितः, I cannot bypass the father's word that I should stay in the forest under any pretext (अपि) because I detest such a thing. He, however, adds that the period of exile is fixed at fourteen years, and agrees that he would later on return to Ayodhyā and rule along with Bharata.

104

21-22 Bharata now asks Rāma to do him a favour to put his feet on the sandals bedecked with gold, and give them to him. Rāma does this, and thereupon Bharata tells the people that these sandals of Rāma would henceforth look to the welfare of the world. After receiving these sandals from Rāma, Bharata places them on the head of an elephant, and asks his party to return to Ayodhyā.

105

12 This stanza states that Vasiṣṭha suggested to Rāma to give his sandals to Bharata, while in 2.104.20 it is Bharata who made that proposal to Rāma. Perhaps Vasiṣṭha might have suggested that course to Bharata.

107

In NR, the Ayodhyākāṇḍa ends with this sarga. Dr. in fact, has an additional passage given in App. I (No. 31) and covering two sargas narrating the abhiṣeka of the sandals followed by a phala-śruti. Note that this additional passage is exclusive to this MS., and is not traced to any other MS. so far discovered.

108

This sarga and the three following are found as part of the Aranyakāṇḍa in NR. I have explained in my Introduction, p. XX the reasons for taking these over here in Ayodhyā.

25 The phrase रामः संसृज्य ऋषिणामनुग्रहादेष्टाद्यमाह is very clumsy in construction and means that Rāma agreed that the sages wanted to leave Citrakūṭa and go elsewhere for a right reason, viz., the region was being infested by demons. सम्प्रदीर्घैस्तुमः is another difficult and clumsy phrase. NR uses the right word सादेष्टः while अनुग्रहः is awkward.

26 This stanza also is somewhat uncouth. The meaning is that after the departure of ascetics, Rāma did not leave his hut even for a moment; for, these ascetics who were busy in observing the saintly vows, were always close associates of Rāma.

109

9-12 Anasūyā, the wife of Atri, was a lady who had acquired miraculous powers by penance. When for ten years the world suffered from the effects of a severe famine, she produced fruits and roots, and made the river Gaṅgā to flow; she also prolonged a night for ten days for the benefit of gods.

110

13 किं ते करवाणि, what shall I do for you? To this question, Sītā replies by saying that all is done by her grace, and nothing remains to be done (कृतमित्यवधीत्).

18 अलङ्कितं निरुध्नेन न विनश्यति. The cosmetic preparations and clothes which Anasūyā gave to Sītā had the property of their being always fresh and that they would never be worn out (अलङ्कितं and विलम्बम्).

26-30 These stanzas contain a narration of Sītā's svayamvara. The only point to be noted is that the bow, according to SR, belonged to Varuṇa, while according to some MSS. of the NE version, it belonged to Śaṅkara (cf. 2392*).

111

17 अविधिश्च is to be construed with दुराधिकारः; the construction is somewhat irregular.

19 The ascetics pointed out to Rāma two paths, one leading to the safer portion of the forest by which they used to go to bring fruits, while the other led to a difficult and uncomfortable part of Daṇḍakāraṇya.
